

JIM GAFFIGAN

Jim Gaffigan is an American stand-up comedian, actor, writer, and producer. His “clean” stand-up comedy material is often about fatherhood, observations, laziness, and food. In 2014, he received the American Comedy Award for Best Concert Comic.

A prolific writer, Jim has numerous critically acclaimed comedy specials, including Beyond The Pale (2006), King Baby (2009), Mr. Universe (2012), Obsessed (2014), Cinco (2017), and Nobel Ape (2018), three of which received Grammy nominations.

As an actor, Jim co-created and starred in a TV Land television series based on his life called The Jim Gaffigan Show. He appeared on Broadway in That Championship Season, which opened in March 2011, opposite Brian Cox, Chris Noth, Kiefer Sutherland, and Jason Patrick. Jim gave a critically acclaim performance in the 2017 feature film, Chappaquiddick.

Jim is also noted for his voice over work. He voiced an animated version of himself on Pale Force with Conan O'Brien (2005-2008), which receive an Emmy nomination. He has also voiced characters on the animated shows Bob's Burgers, Shorty McShorts' Shorts, WordGirl, Star vs. the Forces of Evil, and the animated feature films Duck Duck Goose and Hotel Transylvania 3.

In 2016, Jim won his first Emmy Award for his recurring commentary on CBS News Sunday Morning.

Jim is married to his writing partner, actress Jeanine Gaffigan, and together they have five children.
